Privacy Policy

Any personal data collected or processed is treated securely and used in accordance with Foodtruly Ambitions's privacy policy as detailed below. By giving us the personal data you are consenting to its collection and use in line with this policy. This includes the use of cookies as explained below.

Data collected

Your Internet Protocol (IP) address is logged in order to receive and send information from and to you over the Internet. You will be asked for certain personal data such as your name and email address when you make an enquiry or provide feedback of our services.

Cookies

A cookie is a small piece of data that is sent from our web server to your browser which is stored on your hard drive or memory card of your mobile device. A cookie cannot read data off your hard disk or memory card, nor can it read cookie files created by other sites and will not damage your system.

You can reset your browser to refuse cookies or alert you when a cookie is being sent. If you choose not to accept cookies, some features of this website may not work as intended. We only use cookies for system administration and to give us information on the number of visitors to different parts of our website. We do not use them to identify you.

Email communications

Use of personal data

Where appropriate, we use your personal data:

- To provide goods and services to you or your organisation;
- To let you know about other goods and services in which you may be interested;
- To inform you about changes and improvements to this website.

If you make an enquiry you will receive email communications alerting you to news and offers. You may unsubscribe from these communications at any time. The unsubscribe link is found in the footer of all emails as our standard procedure.

Transfer of data

By the nature of the Internet, the personal data you supply through this website may be sent electronically to servers anywhere in the world. It may be used, stored and processed anywhere in the world, including countries outside of the European Economic Area (EEA). Bear in mind that many countries outside the EEA do not adequately protect your rights as a data subject.

To whom might we disclose your personal data?

Your personal data may be passed to a third party if they need it in order to fulfil your orders for our goods and services, or to execute the communications we send to you. Except as set out above, we shall not disclose your personal information unless obliged to do so, or allowed to do so by law, or where we need to in order to run our business (e.g. where other people process data for us). In such circumstances, we ask those people to give us confidentiality or non-disclosure undertakings. This may be in a written disclosure document that is also kept for traceability purposes.

Links

This website may contain links to other websites. We are not responsible for the privacy practices of these and you should read their own privacy policies. The policy described here, applies only to personal data collected by Foodtruly Ambitions. Foodtruly Ambitions is not responsible for the content of other websites.

Security

No data transmission over the Internet is guaranteed 100% secure, but we do take appropriate steps to protect the security of your personal data.

Changes to this policy

Foodtruly Ambitions' privacy policy may change at any time, so you may wish to check it each time you visit our website or email us on; info@foodtrulyambitions.com
